Managing Emerald Ash Borer Impacts By Clean Water Services

Emerald ash borer is a small beetle that was confirmed to be present in Oregon in July 2022. The pest is invasive, difficult to detect, spreads rapidly, and kills the ash trees it infests. The Tualatin River streamside forests and wetlands are between 30-80% Oregon ash. The loss of these trees in natural and urban areas will have a significant environmental impact on the entire county. The Clean Water Services team will explain why they are well poised to weather the threat and share a plan to mitigate loss.
